

Introduction to AI

Your guide to ETUI's e-learning course

Background

The impact of AI in the world of work has become a reality from some years now. The fast development of technology at all levels and in all sectors of activity turns the AI into a new topic for the agenda of trade unions across Europe. The course contributes to reinforce trade union proactive role, especially on emerging topics as the AI-driven technologies and the algorithms at workplace. It aims to empower trade union representatives in all sectors currently/potentially subject to AI assisted work by enabling them to understand the challenges and opportunities of the AI technologies at the workplace.

The training is addressed to trade union representatives and officials at any level interested in learning more about AI in the workplace and/or active in protecting workers while ensuring working conditions locally, regionally, sectorally or nationally.

- Use the calendar to set your own deadlines (daily or weekly), according to your professional and personal agenda and respect them
- Check the next steps, don't take it one at the time. Knowing what you will have to do on the following topics will help you manage your efforts and time
- Find your learning rhythm and keep it, this way it will not feel as overwhelming as you would have to do it all at once

- Access the course on a weekly basis, that will help you stay connected with the topic and the messages of your tutor can inspire and motivate you
- Set the time you attend the course as a personal moment, make it comfortable, use your favourite device and make sure you stay fully focused
- You can login just to check the course progress or the announcements. Not every time you have to work exclusively on a task, staying updated is as important

CONNECT

- Use a proactive approach when it comes for support. Initiating the communication at the very moment you got stuck, will save you time and energy
